

Give Potential Clients a Snapshot of Who You Are

Have you been itching to set-up a digital portfolio to give your clients a more holistic view of. . .well, you? If you've been looking for a way to display all your achievements digitally—both professionally and personally—you might want to check out Pathbrite.

Pathbrite is a new company that lets users create digital portfolios that go way beyond the usual flat resume and timeline display. The company originally targeted students applying to college or first-time job seekers. However, Pathbrite is really for anyone, of any age, who wants to create a digital portfolio.

Check out how some of the Pathbrite staff use it to display their own experience.

What do you think? Would you find this technology useful?